PHO702 – Informing Context

In undertaking my research I have documents the details of the various Former PoW that I have been able to identify and ideally locate. This document is a living document and is expected to outlive my current MA Course as well as any module. Because of this and in order to show the work carried out within 702 I have created THIS FROZEN copy of this document.

For convenience during 702 the original table has been divided into five separate tables covering; Northern and Southern England, Midlands & East Anglia, Scotland and Wales. A further division is made in each table as to the county.

Research Sources	2
PoW Camps in Northern England.....	3
Midlands and East Anglia	22
Sothern England	56
PoW Camps in Scotland.....	99
PoW Camps in Wales.....	119

In addition to splitting the tables adding more data and taking more photos I have also created a Google Map overlay which can be found at the link below:

https://drive.google.com/open?id=17IZRxuX4uc78_KP5EBdWCD44x0pXaSsc&usp=sharing

The main living document can be found as a link on my Final Project page of my word press website. I can only think to the page and not the document its self as the document is stored as a .pdf that is replaced on up-grade:

<https://wordpress.com/view/systonimagesblog.wordpress.com>

This copy of the PoW Camp list differs in the text within these intro pages.

It also differs in some embedded links.

The Main living document contain ALL the links to All the photos shot as an embedded link within the entry for reach PoW Camp. This copy has replaced that link with one that links ONLY to the images shoot between the end of PHO701 and the end of PHO702.

Should you wish though to view ALL the images shoot this far on my project from when it started to the date and time you press the link then that link is below:

<https://www.systonimages.co.uk/f537064555>

For a single link to ALL the images shot for my major project within PHO702:

<https://www.systonimages.co.uk/f107730902>

In complying this data it has become evident that the Camp numbers for whatever reason have been duplicated and a camp may have had more than one number as such it is acknowledged that discrepancies exist within not just my table but also with the source information. This may have in some cases camps being moved from one location to another, a camp being divided and given two number such as one for German one for Italian, or one number for Officers and a different number for other ranks. During my research I have come cross camps that where not listed in any of the original data sources and for which the camp number is not known; a good example of this is Green Norton. I have stayed at this former camp when it was a Youth Hostel. Greens Norton is not included within the English Heritage or other data but it can be found in many other sources. Where I have been able to identify but not its number, I have simply numbered it as "00".

My two initial primary sources of Information are from English Heritage and the National Records office

Note: The details used to populate the table with regards to Commanding Officer, Camp Type etc including the abbreviations used where taken from the 1947 Foreign Office List of PoW Camps

The Geneva Conventions state (some-where) that the combatants are to clearly make and let the other side know details as to locations as to where the PoW Camps are. The FO doc's identify the PoW Camps by address. However, it would be logical that the location of the camps where to be recorded and passed to the ICRC as Lat/Log. It is this doc that I want in order to formally verify the list of camps and their absolute locations.

643	Dorfold Hall Camp Nantwich	Cheshire CW5 8LD	SJ 6357 5250 53° 4' 6" N 2° 32' 42" W					Yes	3		Original report from English Heritage, states: Precise location not identified, NGR given for Dorfold Hall. 28Feb19 OS Map Aerial views shows the hall and to the east of the hall and just before the canal there are signs and markings in the grass consistent with a Large PoW or other camp. However, the buildings, bases and road and path ways have been removed. As the area of the camp is well defined and has not been built over it makes for a good site to visit 27Mar19 Camp 643 not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47.
4	Windlestone Hall Camp Rusheyford	County Durham DL17 0LZ	NZ 263 287 54° 39' 9" N 1° 35' 38" W						4		01Mar19 The two-digit coordinates are not enough to locate this site using the OS Map Aerial tool. However, Wikipedia gives a location of NZ 263 287 as the location of the hall. This entry also includes a comment stating that the Hall was used as satellite camp of Harperley POW Camp 93. See: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Windlestone_Hall The OS Map Aerial views of the hall clearly show the hall and out buildings. As to the location of the "Camp" as buildings in addition to the hall the most probable locations are immediately to the north of the hall an area covered by trees. Alternatively there is an enclosed field directly to the south and adjoining the hall 27Mar19 The Feb47 FO Pow List identifies Camp 4 as being Scraftoft in Leicestershire

However, they do not show anything that could be based on previous experience that could be a PoW Camp. If the Camp is the castle then the site may be fully defined. Otherwise aspects of the site remain undefined and the camp aspects of this site may lay under the park or woodlands.

Original report from English Heritage, states: 12 large gable roofed huts still in use as part of the hospital 28Feb19 OS Map Aerial views shows the hospital building but it is not possible to tell if there are still any of the 12 huts 27Mar19 The Feb47 FO PoW List identifies Camp 93 as Harperley Camp. This camp is identified as a hospital as it is in County Durham like Harperley these two camps may be connected.

605	West Bolden Camp Down Hill Quarry Sunderland	County Durham NE36 0AX	NZ 3475 6025 54° 56' 8" N 1° 27' 33" W						4		Original report from English Heritage, states: Precise location not identified, no obvious features visible on aerial photographs. NGR given for centre of quarry. 28Feb19 OS Map Aerial views shows a few buildings and what could be a quarry in the middle of farm land 27Mar19 Camp 605 not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47. 03Apr19 This camp is very close to Camp 8 The Hutted Camp East Boldon which has a high priority to visit.
613	Blackbeck Camp Stainton	County Durham DL12 8UF	NZ 0720 1793 54° 33' 23" N 1° 53' 24" W					Yes	3		Original report from English Heritage, states: Precise location not identified, NGR given for Stainton Grove Camp. There were numerous camps in this area associated with the initial training of army recruits during World War II. 28Feb19 OS Map Aerial views shows a very well-defined industrial estate area with a number of disused paths and other markings on the ground. My assumption is that the buildings have been cleared from the camp and the industrial units have to some extent been built on top of original foundations within the camp boundary as such it is worth a visit 27Mar19 The Feb47 FO Pow List identifies Camp 613 as Old Dalby. A link between this camp and Old Dalby is unlikely.

As this camp is identified as 139B it is likely that it is a subcamp or hostel of Wolviston

All huts demolished. Visited 22 Nov 18 The original Hall was demolished in the late 1950's. The site is now owed by the Forestry Commission and has a dedicated visitor and outdoor centres and is use as by "Go Ape" and Outdoors activity organisation. Whilst the origin I hall has gone the stone balustrade of the hall remains with a toilet block and visitor centre sited on the main hall. The outbuildings remain and have become the main visitor centre with shop, exhibition space and restaurant. It is fair to say that in the case of Barbed wire has been replaced by Zip Wire. See Camp no.15 26Feb19 OS Map Aerial views shows not just a Hotel type building, but it also includes a Nissen hut and what might be a single-story prefab hut. This is an odd one as it is listed as camp 13 and camp 15 in some docs and there are also another Camp 13 and another camp 15 National Archives Reference FO 939/99 13 Officers Camp, Shap Wells Hotel, Shap, Cumberland National Archives Reference WDX 1600 Shap Wells Prisoner of War Camp, CD copy of photographic album of German and Italian prisoners of war 27Mar19 Camps 13 and 5 are not included within the FO Camp list. On the North edge of the woods there are appear to be two Nissen Huts and 2 or more prefab Huts 27Mar19 Camp 155 not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47.
692	No.4 Camp Longtown Carlisle	Cumberland CA6 5UB	NY 37 68 55° 0' 9" N 2° 59' 11" W					Yes	4	Mixed	Original report from English Heritage, states: Precise location not identified. There are several candidate camps. The original 2-digit coordinates are simply not enough. To the West of them is the Longtown Ordnance Factory. However, there is a former RAF Longtown a site that is now a Windfarm. It would be a logical location for the PoW Camp for German Airman at or towards the end of the war given its high number of 692 27Mar19 Camp 692 not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47.
696	Warwick Camp Duranhill Road Carlisle	Cumberland CA1 2UT	NY 4278 5557 54° 53' 29" N 2° 53' 37" W					Yes	3	Commercial	Original report from English Heritage, states: Pre-existing military camp. Industrial estate. 26Feb19 OS Map Aerial views shows that this site is now the Rosehill Industrial Estate on Junction 43 of the M6. This site has thus been completely built over. Having said that it is a good site to include and visit as it should produce some good images.
2 176	Glen Mill Wellyhole Street, Oldham	Lancashire OL4 3HH	SD 949 049 53° 32' 26" N 2° 4' 42" W						3	Mixed Residential Commercial Woodland	Original report from English Heritage, states: Large cotton mill and associated weaving sheds etc. with additional huts. See Camp no.176 02Mar19 The original English Heritage data for this site did not include its coordinates. On-line investigations say that the old cotton mill that was used as a PoW Camp was demolished in 1970. The Air crash site contains a good article on the camp and gives its coordinates as SD 949 049: http://aircrashsites.co.uk/038/ The OS Map View shows a mixture of industrial sites around trees and scrub land and does not show any obvious indications as to the old PoW site and or now demolished mill building. This contrasts with the article and photos shown in the air crash sites website 27Mar19 The Feb47 FO Pow List identifies Camp 2 as Toft Hall Knutsford. Camp 176 not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47.

Under the Geneva Protocols Prisoners can be used for War or Dangerous Work. Therefore I was somewhat surprised by the name of this camp as it implied that PoWs were used for Bomb Disposal which is against the rules. However, it appears that it is correct and that PoWs were used for such activities AFTER the war had finished. This is in addition to the use of the German Navy post the surrender in the detection and disposal of se mines

Location grid reference is approximately SK 3567 5057 where the works are marked on the map This is a link to the newspaper article about the application to build on the land: https://www.derbytelegraph.co.uk/news/business/175-homes-planned-site-former-1976334 I can tell you it was occupied by male Italian POWs as my father-in-law used to swear at them in Italian when they were brought into Belper to go to the cinema. I'm sure that if you contacted the right people you would be able to gain access to the land but there is a public footpath running next to the site and it is visible from the road. Sorry I can't be more helpful than that re access. Reading the article Garner Holdings might be the people to contact or once the Amber Valley website is back up you might get more contact details off the planning application. According to the article it was camp No 58. Good luck Angela Location updated From: SK 36 50 to SK 3567 5057

This site of a former PoW Camp is now known as Headon Camp Industrial Estate . This former PoW Site is situated on the Nottinghamshire Lincolnshire boarder and close to Rampton Special Hospital. This site lies in the countryside and is surrounded by fields and the camp boundary has been retained. A number of brick buildings on the site have survived as have a number of huts. Whilst some of the surviving buildings are now being used for light industry and secure / semi secure storage a number of huts are derelict. Huts have been cleared leading to waste ground like wise there has been some new building on the site. The business usage on the site is mixed and I was not able to safely and or obtain permission to view a number of the huts including a small collect of huts to the East of Industrial estate one of which has been converted to a house and another looks as though it has been lived in with the other few huts in relatively good condition. 24Apr19 Site visited during PHO702 and images taken Image ID: Photo 2019 04 2840 https://www.systonimages.co.uk/p26171849

One site was an ordnance depot, the other an RAF Airfield. Long Marston was a RAF airfield and I have visited the airfield on a previous photographic project. As per other airfield sites the camp could be in the domestic or technical sites around the airfield. It is also possible that the camp may have been a simple POW cage in the centre of the airfield or at a remote former domestic site. Whilst I have not visited the Long Marston Depot the same applies as per the airfield; without more accurate and or other data it is not possible to pinpoint the location of this former PoW Camp. Having said the above I have identified a 3rd site some what smaller than the airfield and Ordnance Depot. This third site is to the south of the Depot and is the correct size and shape as a former PoW camp. There are buildings on this 3rd site as well as evidence of former buildings close by. All three sites are marked on the saved copy of the aerial map view and I believe that the smaller site to the South is the most likely one to have been the PoW Camp. 25Mar19 Camp 6 is not included within the Feb47 FO Camp list. This was a purpose-built, standard type camp constructed in 1942. Common buildings and facilities at standard type camps included water towers, offices, officer's mess, a canteen, guard rooms, barrack huts, ablution blocks, cell blocks, a camp reception station (medical facility/hospital), a cookhouse, dining rooms, recreation rooms and living huts or tents. Camp 55 originally held Italian prisoners and later became a work camp for German prisoners. It could have been in use up until 1948. The site is currently occupied by kennels and wartime buildings appear to survive at the site. Used by Italians, Germans and then displaced persons until 1950s. However, the website for the allotment society states that it is built on the site of the PoW Camp, what is not stated though is whether the site was bigger or smaller than the allotments. Visited 20Mar19 This site was perhaps the most interesting site I came across and photographed during my short trip to Hampshire to photograph several PoW camps and to take part in an organised photoshoot held at RAF Odiham where I had previously spent three years when I was in the Royal Air Force. This site has been identified as Haig Lines, thus I presume it was named for the WWI Field Marshal Douglas Haig. Given that sites are NOT normally named after living people it would put the date of the site as a military installation as after January 1922. The two websites below link show the site before it was redeveloped and what it looks like in part now: https://www.28dayslater.co.uk/threads/queen-elizabeth-barracks-boyce-bks-haig-lines-fleet-hants-20-06-2010-part-1.51321/ https://news.ccallotments.org.uk/ In short, the site was sold for redevelopment to a house building company. In order to get planning permission for houses a part of the site had to be developed for community use and as such a part of this site has become a modern allotment site equipped with a central hut or building. The rest of the site is a housing estate. When I arrived on the site as I say in March 2019 some houses had been finished and sold, others were being finished and yet other properties were still being built. Interestingly a number of original military features have been retained, namely: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Concrete path / road way • Concrete road block • 25m firing range • Air Raid Shelter. Additional items of interest on the site where a few bits of public art work in the form of wooden statues and fencing around the allotments and parts of the building site where they are still building. Evidence of the PoW Camp as such is gone but the site has been preserved/ However, what makes the place so interesting is the Allotments: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • They have been fenced in - just like a PoW Camp • There is a toilet and feeding hut and offices – just like PoW Camp. • There are people working on the land to grow food – just like PoW Camp. • There are numbered regular plots – just like the PoW Camp Huts. • There are locked and guarded gates – just like a PoW Camp. • The plots contain raised beds that resemble beds and huts from a PoW Camp. • There are model "Owls" watching the site. As I say the camp is gone but it only takes a few minutes looking at the allotments and in fact the fencing on the building site to see and feel echo' of the past of the site as a PoW Camp. 26Mar19 The Feb47 FO PoW List identifies PoW Camp 633 as Proteus Camp Nottinghamshire. This site was identified as a PoW site by English Heritage. Thus there is an unexplained conflict between the 2007 English Heritage Report and the Feb47 FO list 24Apr19 Site visited during PHO702 and images taken Photo ID's: Photo 2019 03 2477 to 2543 https://www.systonimages.co.uk/p219569066

671	Popham Camp Micheldever Winchester	Hampshire	SU 5229 4358 51° 11' 20" N 1° 15' 11" W				Visited	4	Urban	Original English Heritage data states: Precise location not identified. NGR for centre of village. 01Mar19 OS Map Aerial view shows a very small village Popham. There is no direct evidence on the map views as to the location of the camp Visited 19Mar19 In trying to locate this former PoW Camp I initially visited an ESSO Service station on Storage yard on the A303 at Popham. This location contained a compound that was clearly a former military facility. On talking to the owners about the compound and my project I was directed a to field on the West Bound Carriage way of the A303 and Overton Road. I arrived at the field that was very large and if it had been used as a PoW Camp then the camp would have occupied only a part of the field. There was a bit of trace evidence of a former road entrance and along the A303 road boundary there was a former brick-built defence structure The people in the storage area told me that the building was once part of a larger clamp and that over the years the rest of the site had been returned to farming. Specifically, the field was at the time of my visit seeded and growing a grass / wheat crop. Given the building, local knowledge and a site visit I am 100% that the site was former military and until such time as more accurate data is presented, I am happy that this was the site of the former PoW Camp and proceeded to take photos. Visited 19Mar19 I was in of Hampshire and decided to visit this camp to locate it, in all I visited three actual sites: Caravan Storage / Park I located this place by the simple act of driving around the area looking for signs of large compounds with evidence of military features which I have to admit is common in this part of the world. I saw a gate, posts and concrete entrance to a site just off the Overton Road and investigated it. I found what I can best be described as an abandoned traveller site and took a number of photographs. Service Area and Compound I found what appeared to be a former military compound=d along the A303 as it joins the A33 and is made up of an Esso Filling station and light industrial estate. The industrial estate compound was clearly military in origin given its size, layout and its containing numbered and prefab buildings. I talked to the site owner and took some photos around the site and was advised that a field on the opposite side of te Overton Road where I had took my other photos was a more likely location. The site owner said that his father had previously described it as a "holding compound" and that there was the remains of a former military building along the edge of the field. Field off Overton Road. The field was large and had been planted with wheat or similar, so I had to keep to the field boundaries. I found the abandoned former military building at the edge of the field and took a number of photos of it including HDR and Panoramic ones of the field. Except for the remains of the military building there were no other indicators as to any military presence or a PoW Camp. It must be stated though the field had been cleared and was used for crops. As to the field boundaries in and around the remains of the building many trees had been planted in rows. Furthermore, the field abuts the A303 which at this point is a large modern duel carriage way sitting in a cutting as such a large amount of land would have been cleared to make this road. Looking at the Map View from Lightroom, Google and OS shapes can be seen in the field which imply that at one point it did contain structures. However, these marks are some what large and dispersed and as such do not show one way or another what I would expect to see of a former PoW / Military Site Conclusion I would say that the field was probably the site of the former PoW Camp, but it cannot be stated as a definite without further information. 26Mar19 Camp 671 is not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47. 24Apr19 Site visited during PHO702 and images taken

Fleet Road runs across the common between Aldershot and Farnborough and there is no directly observable place along the road that can be identified as the former PoW camp just from the OS and Google Aerial maps. I have amended the location as below even though I still do not know the exact location From SU 8491 1527 To SU 8415 5286 Rather than pinpoint the camp on the Mapp View I have simply marked the road from start to finish Visited 20Mar19 Like a number of other sites the English Heritage data does not give an exact location of the former PoW Site, in fact nor does the data I have had access to this far via the National Archives. In some parts of the country it is possible to try and locate former sites including airbases and army sites via the use of the Satellite View of the various on-line mapping tools. It is simply NOT possible to do that in this area as this site is within the Aldershot Military area and Fleet Road which I know well from when I used to live in the area passes past the end of the runways at Farnborough and large parts of the area are still in use by the army as either woodlands and heath to which the public can also access to closed military camps. I took a number of photographs along the length of this road or the road, of Farnborough and into a couple of the military bases. I was stopped and questioned twice; once by a Army Corporal and once by the MoD Police. I am ex—Forces and am fully aware of the rules, and what is permitted, I pointed this out and said that I was taking the photos from public land and the roads etc which is legal providing that it is I did not go into to or over the fences into the closed military areas which I did not. In driving along the road and taking photos I did not find any direct evidence as to the location of the former PoW Site. However, I did find an old WWII Air raid Shelter that had been filled with concert fence posts as well as a pillbox. What I did find though was Puckridge Barracks. This site according to the sign I photographed is part of the MoD locally employed Army Guard Unit and Dog Section. Given that the PoW Camp was called Puckridge Barracks I am happy that the small Barracks I found is the location of the former PoW camp and have up-dated the location information. 13Apr19 – Letter I have sent out a formal letter to Officer Commanding requesting access to the camp in order to take photos for this project. The English Heritage data states that this was a hostel and the camp number for Whitchurch Camp is 693A thus it is assumed to be a hostel / sub camp administered by Camp 693 as Darnall's Farm Visited 19Mar19 Being in the general area of this site I decided to see if I could locate it. The site location was given by English Heritage as Newbury Road. I have via on-line research been unable to make a positive identification as to the location of this site which is described as a Hostel and has the letter A added to the Camp ID. I simply drove up and down Newbury Road which turned up to be on a steep hill. For most of the length of the road it is in effect a "Cutting" with trees and hedges above the level of the road and fairly modern buildings behind them. As you go down the hill towards the village there are a few accessible houses and buildings on the right-hand side of the road. There was nothing that screamed out as having any connection with this project in terms of the buildings at the bottom of the hill but they cannot be ruled out. Simply put more information is needed in order to locate this Hostel or Subcamp... Except that is for a single pill box defensive structure. A spotted an old brick-built pill ox on the side / coner of Newbury Road and Kings Walk. It turned out that this pill-box and military / government fencing sitting above the road level is actually in some ones garden of a modern house.. I called at the house to ask about the pill box and to gain better access to photograph it. However, no one was home Thus my photos of this protentional linked item are limited to what can be viewed from the road and trees close by. 24Apr19 Site visited during PHO702 and images taken Image ID's: Photo 2019 03 2121 to 2128 https://www.systonimages.co.uk/p398220918

The reason I know this is not through any research – I lived at the RAF Oakhanger Accommodation site in 1985 for several month. What cannot be seen though is the old brick and stone work entrance to the Barracks that is between the Wellington Roundabout and the Brewers Fayre, Tesco's and Premier Inn. So although this site has been built over and there is no longer and trace of the former PoW Camp I actually know this site from my time in the Royal Air Force when stationed at RAF Odiham. In addition, I also spent 18 months working for BAE at Farnborough which is close to this site Visited 20Mar19 This site contained a large military Cavalry Barracks a park of which was used as a PoW Camp. The camp may have occupied the entire site, but this is unlikely. Post WWII a modern military housing unit was built on this site. This housing and other military facilities were sold off many years ago and the site cleared. In clearing and redeveloping the site a Premier Inn Hotel and Pub restraint was built at one end of the site along with a supper store with many other buildings being erected on this site it is not possible to accurately locate or discover the remains of the former PoW Camp. What I have done though is to photograph the preserved former Barracks Entrance along with the Premier Inn Hotel and Pub Restraint located adjacent to the Wellington Roundabout on the A325. Looking at the site and the entrance to the Premier Inn from the preserved Barracks Entrance is a tower with a gateway that is meant to in its design echo back to the site's military history. However, it looks darker and more sinister in that it resembles the entrance to some of the concentration camps. 26Mar19 Camp 1006 is not included within the FO Camp list. However, it is possible that the PoWs were housed just in the main house in which case the site is full identified and intact. 25Mar19 The FO List of PoW Camps identify 235 as The Arches. It is possible that given this unit's location in Hemel Hempstead that it is in fact a subcamp of The Arches main camp

There is a possible location at Highlands Farm that is identified as a Rare Breeds Centre owing to the presence of Nissen huts. However, at the end of WWII when the military sites and equipment was sold off a large number of Nissen Nuts were purchased by framers and put up on their own land. Thus it could be the case that the huts are from the PoW Camp or the RAF airfield but were moved to their current location after the camps closed. 26Mar19 Camp 282 is not included within the FO Camp list. There is also indication of what looks like a Nissen Hut on the site Visited 18Mar19 This is a fantastic site that is reported to contain two camps 632 and 653. The site as it stands today this made up of three main elements: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Scrap Yard • Caravan Sales Site • Roadside Cafe Scrap Yard The scape yard office for L C Hughes is in a small single story portacabin type structure. I went into the office and explained who I was and that I wished to take a number of photographs. I was instructed to sign in, take a reflexive vest and told to stick to the marked walk way for safety. This place is amazing as it contains several Nissen huts that may be original to the site but also may have been moved around the site. During my site inspection I came across an original WWII gateway through which two prefab huts can be seen in the field next to this site. These huts may be part of this site for example guard quarters or it may be part of a second camp. In a and amongst the cars and scrap in the site there is a large fountain and statue that the site owners said is an original from the PoW Camp. There is through a disturbing feature on this site and that is a sign above a sperate compound that says "Bicester Reclaim" as it echo's the signs in the concentration camps. Caravan Sales As per the scrap yard I went into the sales rooms and asked for permission to take a number of photos. I was given permission and told that the sales building was one of the original huts as was the Café. However, both the caravan sales hut and café had been rebuilt. In the case of the Caravan sales building the walls where replaced retaining the rest of the structure. Roadside Café The café had closed so I just took a number photos from outside. Its heritage can be seen in its shape and size. However, the original structures have been replaced by what is now a new building sitting on old foundations. 24Apr19 Site visited during PHO702 and images taken Image ID: Photo 2019 03 1832 – 1902 https://www.systonimages.co.uk/p412568519

Specifically, this is the site of the UK Government national archives where the records of the former PoW are kept. This is a MUST visit sites in order to access the records of the camps and now to photograph Kew as a former PoW Camp. Visited 21Mar19 Having visited Hampshire in order to photograph a number of former PoW sites and to locate others and take part in an organised photoshoot I included a trip to the site of former PoW Camp 144 Ruskin Road. This site is now the location of the UK National Archives. During my on-line research I had come across references to a number of government files held by the UK National Archive on various PoW Camps. Prior to my visit I completed an on-line application process in order to obtain a reader's ticket and I pre-ordered a number of files without direct knowledge as to what I would find in these files. Specifically I ordered one file that the National Archive Search facility stated contained a list of the various camps. I also ordered five or six separate files that the search facility said related to specific camps. As I say I had no idea as to the exact contents of these files until I read them. The site was relatively easy to find although as I found the security around access to the documents is tight in order to ensure that documents are not damaged or stolen. The documents as it turns out were from the Foreign Office and date back to around 1947. The basics and purpose was for inspection reports from the camps in view of repatriation of the PoWs hence the doc's originating from the Foreign Office and not the War Office. The document that listed the various camps ONLY contains details of the camps still open in February 1947 and included multiple corrections in blue pencil / pen on top of typed sheets. This this contained the address and basic details such as phone and telex details but it did NOT include map coordinates of the camps – just addresses. These addresses whilst accurate do not contain more modern features such as post codes and thus whilst good enough at the time are not detailed enough to pin point the location down to a few metres. The Camp inspection reports like the list documents include details of the camps including how many PoW they held, accommodate types and the names but not address or location details of subcamps, hostels and billets. Using a Photo Copy Stand I photographed the List of Camps along with Visit Reports for Camps 4 and 94, both of which I have visited and photographed as they are in Leicestershire and close to my home address. Having read and copied the reports I took several photos of the outside of the National Archives Building including a plaque giving some of the WWII history of the site. 27Mar19 Camp 144 is not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47. However, this very document has had a massive up-date based on the information found in the list of PoW Camps 24Apr19 Site visited during PHO702 and images taken List of Camps Still Open in February 1947 FO Inspections in 1947 of PoW Camp 4 Scraftoft FO Inspections in 1947 of PoW Camp 94 Billesdon: https://www.systonimages.co.uk/f922947462 Image ID's: Photo 2019 03 2805 to 2839 https://www.systonimages.co.uk/p10572145

These are the size and shape of a former PoW camp compound with other marking in and around the area. 27Mar19 The Feb47 FO Pow List gives Camp 658 as being Hill Camp Westbury, as does the English Heritage original data. It is this assumed that the camp may have been moved at some point and or the number re-used. It is unlikely that this camp in Horsham is a sub camp or hostel for Westbury owing to distance.

Some basic research shows that there is data held at Kew and there was once a question asked in Parliament about the former Raynes Park army camp – but there is nothing that specifies the location of the former camp. A bit more research gives the army base as being next to Southfields Academy on Merton Road and is now listed as Royal Marines (Reserve) Barracks Wandsworth. Having looked at the building via Google Street View it is evident that this building is post war. So, I am happy that I have made a positive site identification until something comes along to contract what I have found this far. Therefore, the final coordinates for this site are given as NS 2596 8633 29Mar19 From Secret Scotland Website, PoW Camp Summary WWII: Destroyed. Please note this refers to the camp only, not Duff House itself, a surviving grand Georgian estate house cared for by Historic Environment Scotland. We've been told the house was briefly known as PoW Camp 5, housing mostly Naval PoWs. Attacked by a German Heinkel bomber on 22 July 1940, 6 PoWs and 2 British soldiers were killed and many more injured. After the attack the PoWs were quickly moved to English PoW Camp 2, Knutsford, Cheshire, before being transferred to Canada. PoWs were held inside Duff House itself, including the East Wing which was demolished after the war due to the bomb damage. Following removal of the PoWs after the attack, various different regiments were stationed in the house for training purposes, including the Norwegian Brigade during 1941/2, and various Polish units from 1945 until August 1946. The golf course is and was completely separate and had no connection with the PoW camp.

Whilst there is no direct evidence thus far as to the location of the PoW Camp the location of the school is known. Using the OS Map Aerial View it appear that the field to the north and adjacent to the school is the location of the PoW Camp. There are fields to the North and West of the school and housing to the east and south. The field to the north contains what may be faint marks whilst the field to the west contains some buildings that appear to belong to a farm that are similar to PoW Huts.

A few examples of the surviving former PoW huts were visible until the early 1990s, when they were demolished. The original huts stood as early community buildings. In the early 1980s several huts and a water tower were also visible on the now Waltwood Park Drive area, this area belonged to the General Post Office and was used to house old telecommunications equipment until it was sold and demolished by British Telecom who took over the site when the organisation was privatised in the early 1980s. The land was subsequently sold to Westbury homes who built the Waltwood Park Drive Development of around 220 houses on the land. Given the above the site of this former camp has been located. However, the OS Map aerial view shows as expected that the site whilst defined within a large boundary has been subsumed by the housing development

199	Haverfordwest	Pembrokeshire	SM 9338 1544 51° 47' 57" N 4° 59' 52" W					Yes	3..4	Residential	07Mar19 Dyfed Archaeological Trust identifies this as a former PoW camp site in there report at: http://www.dyfedarchaeology.org.uk/projects/campsandrangespreseli.pdf The report gives the location as SM 9338 1544. The report states that this camp has been lost to redevelopment. OS Map and Aerial view places this camp as a series of house alongside the B4341 road. However, directly on the opposite side of the road the OS Maps identify a disused race course. It is equally possible that the former site is located on the race course or housing development or even both. 28Mar19 Camp 199 is not included within the FO Camp list. Therefore, it is logical to assume that this camp closed prior to Feb47.
